SNOWSTORM CAUSES WHEAT TO GO DOWN

Leading Dealers, However, Are Entire Region That Produces Retail Price Will Remain the Winter Cereal Will Get Plenty of Moisture.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—With rain or snow predicted officially for the entire winter wheat country east of the Rockles, fear of drought disappeared today and the market weakened. The close was easy at a net decline of 100 to 100 to Wheat closed at almost the bottom prices of the session. The market was to unit the preceding day. A downfall of moisture that reached eastward into central Kansas made even the hardiest bulls lose enthusiasm. According to the government forecast, the damp area was to be widely extended within thirty-six hours, so that no part of the fall-sown crop would be without some benefit. Large quantities of wheat bought here yesterday by the southwest were soil out to day because of a belief that there would be a total break-up of the drought. Furthermore, no demand existed for cash wheat today. Primary receipts were libered and another flour mill at Duluth shut down, leaving only one small concern there running. Foreign news, too, was bearish. May, after ransing between $15 c and 25c, closed & off, at $55 635 c.

In corn, the forecast of unsettled weather was thought to mean lessened and stated from $476 to $478 c.
